San Francisco Economy

Highlights of the May Report

- The San Francisco Controller's Office has been tracking the city's economy with bi-monthly reports on various local economic indicators.
- The area's job market has been improving in 2024, with an addition of 1,900 jobs in San Francisco and San Mateo counties between February and April. Unemployment has dropped back to 3.4%, down from 4.0% in January.
- The Leisure & Hospitality sector again leads the area's job growth, although employment is still well below pre-pandemic levels. Education, Health, and Government are other bright spots, while tech job losses are continuing.
- Despite the recovery in tourism employment, hotel revenues in April dropped to 60% of April 2019 levels, and there has been little consistent recovery in occupancy or rates.
- The housing market presents a somewhat brighter story. Apartment rents have risen during the spring, and while the for-sale market is still lagging the state, there are signs that it may be bottoming-out. Stability in rents and prices has not yet translated into sustained recovery in building permits, however.
